What Happend to Bill's Eye?

What happened to Bill's eye? So, 2 weeks ago, Bill was playing golf with my ex-husband (yes, we all get along and they're friends) - anyway, he came home and told me he couldn't see out of his right eye. We went to the ER, they told Bill he had an eye stroke. The next day at the eye Dr's appt, the eye Dr said he did not have an eye stroke, but a busted vessel in the eye that can happen as we age due to retinal fluid thickening and pulling on vessels, what? So, the Dr told Bill to take it easy and see him in 2 weeks.

Yesterday was the 2 week visit. The Dr said now Bill has 4 retinal tears, so it got worse. Bill had to get laser surgery for that, right there in the office. So, Dr's orders for Bill for the next week is to not read, not on his phone, computer, nothing close and to still take it easy, like not really do anything. His eyes need to rest.

When life happens and takes you out of commission for a bit, it can be a huge hassle. This is why it's a good thing we're a husband and wife real estate team. We divide and conquer all of the time. Even though Bill is down for the next week or so, that does not mean The Hayfer Group is down too, I'm still here and will take on Bill's tasks along with what I already do.

When it's time for you to search for a Realtor, a husband and wife team (us) I think is always the best. We don't have to ever wait on any answers we may need because we live together and can find out right away. Many more plusses with a husband and wife team.

Crossing all fingers for a full eye recovery for Mr. Bill. Look and see our cat Jasmine sleeping under Bill's arm.
