Cool!

We had to call out Trinity Air to come over and look at why our upstairs wasn't cooling down like it should. We have the problem fixed, but encountered another one. 9 years ago, when we had the system put in (by a different company) - the installer didn't properly register the warranty and the way the manufacturer works is you get an extra 5 yrs of warranty if it's properly registered. So we thought we had a warranty for 10yrs, but didn't. We also didn't have a maintenance plan (our choice) - and we should have, because we may have been able to find out that the system wasn't registered properly.

Are you staying cool this summer? I guess lesson learned is for things like this, it's a good idea to go ahead and get on a maintenance plan to ensure things are working properly and go over your plan again to see if things are in check. Have a good week and Happy 4th of July tomorrow! We won't be in the PTC parade this year, but will have some fun videos of where we end up at that you'll see.
